Mother tongue didn't have a script
Can't speak or read in my mother tongue

Other

While I understand Hindi I'm not as fluent in it as English

No written script

I read in my mother tongue as much as I do in English

Ost of the time read bengali news paper and other story book.so it's not applicable for me

Not all contents are available in mother tongue

I am only learning to read malayalam now. I am fluent in, and enjoy, reading Hindi and Kannada as well, but English is just the default. Books of other languages are not in discussions in my social circle, etc.

With the medium of instruction of English across almost schools and colleges, it was hard to also be fluent in another language. In my case, Hindi. However, during my undergrad, I did end up reading Hindi novels.

I read regularly stuff in my mother tongue

If available I read in Mother tongue

More English content online in general. And I live in the US so physical Bangla books are hard to come by. I do read bangla books on my kindle using PDFs. Otherwise my kindle doesn't support bangla e-text.

I do read whenever I come across any covers at my home, and that happens often

I read more in my mother tongue that is Marathi

I give preference to both my mother tongue and English

I don't know

To improve my English I read only in English

Malayalam books are rare to find, considering i'm situated outside Kerala

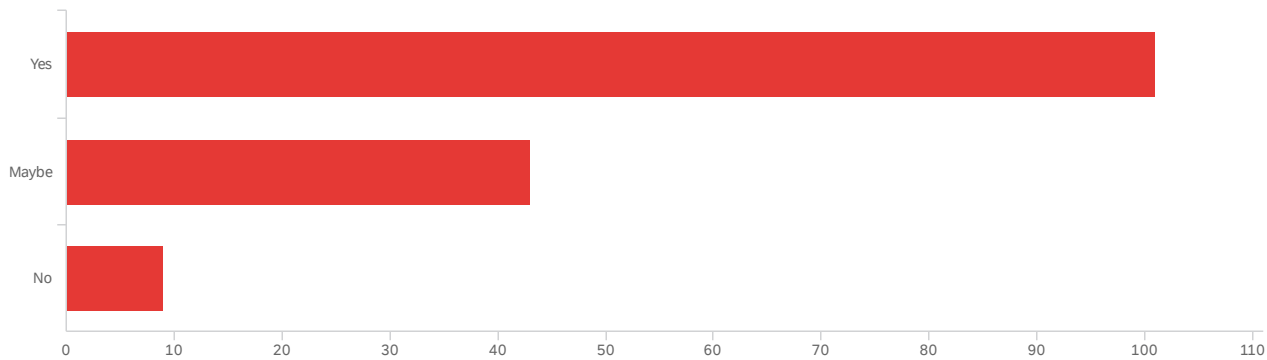

I am more interested in the English literature from its native countries.

I do read often

I prefer English more than my mother tongue

Slower in reading and need to often look for translations

Easier for me to read in terms of language
It's just a matter of time management as I often prioritise reading in English
Access to regional literature
More time learning what/whom I like to read - which in English works I can judge almost immediately but (except to a degree in Hindi) I am not nearly as familiar or discerning of writing in other languages.
Engaging novels/short stories that can perhaps be offered in simpler conversational Hindi the way they English has been simplified in India for readers.

Other

An audio book so I don't struggle with reading

Short content, so I am not tired by the effort it takes to read

I read bangla books/articles for work as well, not just for leisure, because my research is in Comparative Literature.

an audio format so i can hear the stories as i cant read in my mother tongue

Intriguing and interesting

The language and its profoundness

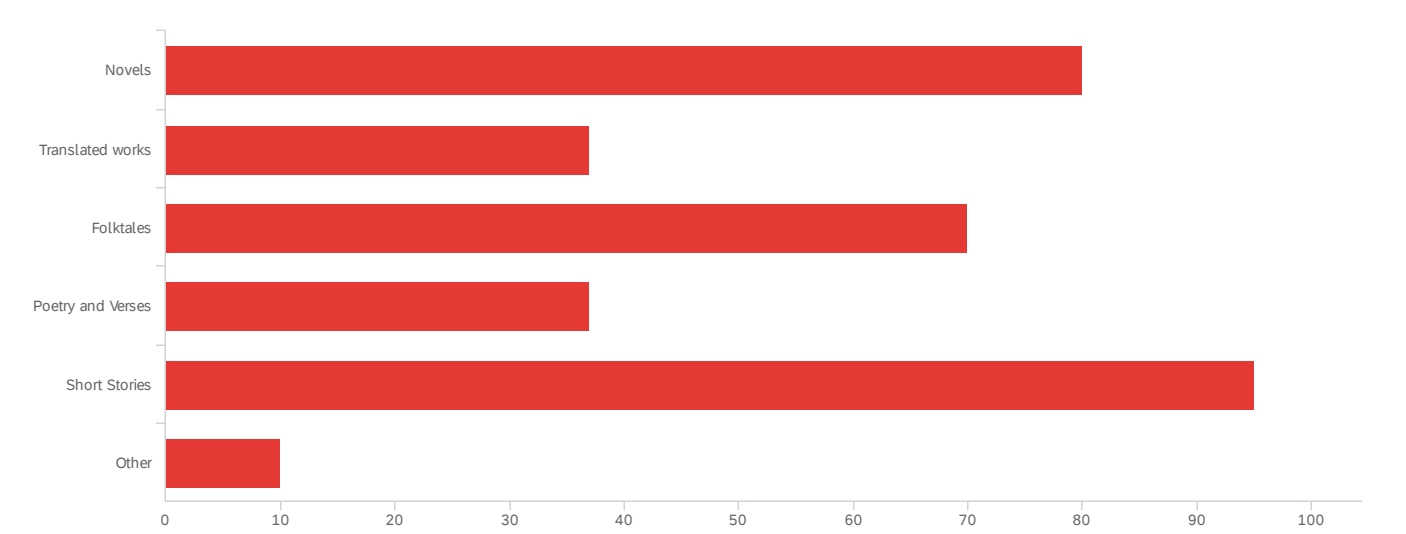

If I can learn to read my mother tongue.

If there were more books available.
